About AAFP and the Cat Friendly Certificate Program

As leaders in feline health and welfare, the AAFP supports veterinary professionals by offering science-based educational programs and resources to further their feline-specific knowledge. "The AAFP identified that some veterinary practices were not ready to become an AAFP Cat Friendly Practice®, but individual veterinary team members had a strong desire to learn more cat friendly ways in which to practice," stated Kelly St. Denis, MSc, DVM, DABVP (Feline), AAFP President. "The AAFP created the Cat Friendly Certificate Program in order to offer this education to veterinary professionals so they could enhance the experience and care provided during feline appointments." The Cat Friendly Certificate Program launched in October 2020 to the veterinary community and offered a concise educational package focusing on the special needs of felines. It provides much need training about cat friendly techniques to elevate the environment and experience for the cat, caregiver, and veterinary team.

The Cat Friendly Certificate Program consists of three uniquely designed certificates for each person in the practice - Cat Friendly Veterinarian (CFV), Cat Friendly Veterinary Professional (CFVP), and Cat Friendly Advocate (CFVA). Each program contains a series of modules exploring aspects in feline behavior, the veterinary experience, and healthcare. The benefits of the program allow veterinary professionals to enhance their ability to fulfill client and patient needs, build confidence in working with cats, demonstrate a personal commitment to feline health, help develop talent, and offer transferable tools and knowledge. The program is approved to provide veterinary professionals continuing education hours in order to meet yearly compliance obligations.

Since its launch in October 2020, over 2,500 individuals have registered for the Cat Friendly Certificate Program, with over 1,700 having earned their certificate so far. The response and feedback from the veterinary community has been overwhelmingly positive. “The Cat Friendly Certificate Program is fantastic! Every veterinary professional can benefit from this program. It helps improve understanding of feline behavior, feline handling and the common but complex feline diseases. I would recommend this program to everyone!” Comments on the program go on to say, “AAFP educational programs continue to inspire and motivate our entire team, and support our continued dedication to excellence with respect to feline patient care.” Veterinary students also find the Cat Friendly Certificate Program valuable. “As a veterinary student, I found this program to be very beneficial. It prepares you well to enter clinics, whether as a new grad or for senior clinical rotations. It also brings a fresh perspective to managing and handling feline patients, which can be lacking in some veterinary curriculums.”

“We have received amazing feedback from so many veterinary professionals noting how the content within the modules has been invaluable in helping provide for more positive feline appointments, and giving team members a deeper understanding of the complex cat, as well as more confidence in working with cats,” noted Heather O’Steen, CAE, AAFP Chief Executive Officer. “We are extremely proud that the hard work put into the Cat Friendly Certificate Program by so many talented veterinary professionals has been awarded one of the ASAE’s highest honors - a 2021 Gold Circle Award.”

The Cat Friendly Certificate Program is sponsored by Zoetis Petcare, Boehringer Ingelheim, Ceva, Elanco, Hill's Pet Nutrition, Merck Animal Health, Purina ProPlan Veterinary Diets, Royal Canin, and is supported by Wedgewood Pharmacy.
